

LEAN Management/continuous improvement process - cooperation offer

Motivation - Goals - Benefits

In a LEAN cooperation project, the project partners learn the application of LEAN principles in connection with a corporate culture that focuses on people. We see this as the basis for a learning organisation, which is lively and agile and offers undreamt-of opportunities and possibilities for action. Particularly in a dynamic market that is becoming increasingly difficult to assess the needs of our employees are changing constantly.

To this end, we design - with the involvement and participation of the people in the company - flowing and waste-free processes and use the strongly local- (Genba)- orientation as a firm basis for management culture. The target state is an organization, which is supported by the abilities, talents and the creativity of the employees growing daily from the inside and thereby in particular utilizing available means and resources to maximize value for the customer - while at the same time minimizing wastage.

Via this practical approach in teaching and designing, we see an essential key to the success of these cooperation projects. The structure allows for experiencing, learning and applying in cooperational workshops as well as individually tailored approaches to meet the requirements of each partner.
